Fox Valley Writing Project

Summer Institute

June 11—July 6, 2007

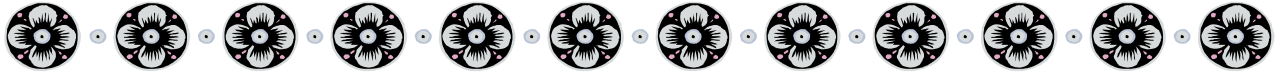

What is the Summer Institute: The Summer Institute is a six credit graduate program that provides participants experience in using the writing process and opportunities to share expertise and do research into fields of writing. The main components of the Summer Institute are:

1. A 90 minute demonstration of a teaching practice that centers on writing.
2. A piece of professional writing based on teaching practices and research.
3. Completion of at least one piece of personal writing.

Who may apply: Any teacher in any discipline, Kindergarten through post-secondary, may apply. Educators from all subject areas and certifications are welcome.

How to apply: Applications for 2007 are now available. To apply call the Project office 920/424-3325 for an application or download the 2007 Application Form at <http://fvwp.uwosh.edu>. For more information contact Polly Montgomery at montgomp@uwosh.edu.

Cost: Tuition for the Summer Institute is based on current University of Wisconsin Oshkosh graduate fees. Full scholarships are available for all those who apply AND are accepted for the 2007 Institute. Inquire about this in your district or call the Project Office at 920/424-3325.
