

Criteria for Documenting Medical Disabilities

In order to review your request for reasonable accommodation, we need to receive the following from your medical care provider:

- Diagnostic statement
- History of problem
- Current status and treatment protocol
- Prognosis
- Results of tests or evaluations used for diagnosis
- Challenges presented by disability ( In other words, what is the current impact of the disability)
- Specific recommendations for accommodations that are supported by test results

The information must be provided on the physician's letterhead and signed by your health care provider. The information submitted must be three years old or less.
