

Title IX Rights and Resources for Oshkosh Campus

Title IX prohibits sexual misconduct on all campuses. Sexual misconduct includes sexual assault, fondling, dating violence, domestic violence, stalking, sexual exploitation, and sexual harassment. More information and definitions can be found on UWO's Title IX website (<https://uwosh.edu/titleix/>).

Reporting - all UWO students, employees, or guests who have experienced sexual misconduct and/or other crimes at any UWO campus or in any program or activity of the University have the right to:

- Report to the University or not report to the University, <https://uwosh.edu/titleix/report-it/>.

Note: UWO employees must report disclosures or observances of sexual misconduct to the University. Confidential Resources, listed below, are the only exceptions to this rule. The Title IX Coordinator or their designee will contact the individual named as victim/survivor in the report for safety, support, rights, and options. The Title IX Reporting Form does not go to law enforcement.

- Report to law enforcement and/or decline to report to law enforcement. UWO Police (920-424-1212).
- Report a crime anonymously on the Clery Reporting Form on the UWO Police website, <https://uwosh.edu/police/>.
- Access confidential support resources on or off campus, <https://uwosh.edu/titleix/support/>.
- A prompt and compassionate response from the University after a report has been received.
- Be accompanied by a support person of their choice beginning with the first outreach interview with the Title IX Coordinator (prior to a formal complaint, if any).
- Pursue a criminal or civil process outside the University process, if wanted and appropriate.
- Request changes from their campus (supportive/protective measures). Changes may include no contact directives, academic or work modifications, and relocation of living or working space. Victims/survivors have the right to reasonable changes even if they choose not to file a formal complaint.
- File a formal Title IX complaint and have it promptly and thoroughly investigated.

Complainant. An individual who is alleged to be the subject of sexual harassment, sexual assault, fondling, dating violence, domestic violence, stalking, or sexual exploitation as defined in the UWO Sexual Misconduct Policy.

Respondent. An individual who has been reported to be the perpetrator of sexual harassment, sexual assault, fondling, dating violence, domestic violence, stalking, or sexual exploitation, as defined in the UWO Sexual Misconduct Policy.
